KLBD UPDATE 6

24 SEPTEMBER 2026

CHANGES:

The following Princes products, previously containing Mackerel and approved Parev are now made with Jack Mackerel (a different species of fish). They are Not Kosher due to shared production equipment with non-kosher products.

Princes Jack Mackerel Fillets Extra Virgin Olive Oil

Princes Jack Mackerel Fillets Rich Tomato

Princes Jack Mackerel Fillets Spicy Tomato

Princes Jack Mackerel Fillets Sunflower Oil

Please note that Jack Mackerel is a kosher species of fish and other products which fall under our general guidelines for canned fish would be permitted.

The latest KLBD Guidelines for Canned Fish are as follows:

Reputable brands of kosher species of fish, canned in brine, water or vegetable oil are generally permitted. Products known to be manufactured on lines used for non-kosher products are listed as NK. It is advisable to avoid products bearing an allergen warning relating to shellfish, crustaceans or molluscs.

To check which canned fish are approved, see <https://isitkosher.uk/#fish%20canned>.

Previously permitted under general guidelines, Supermarket Own Label Canned Butter Beans are now Not Kosher due to shared use of equipment.

As previously advised, Supermarket Own Label Canned Red Kidney Beans, Mixed Beans, Garden Peas, Marrowfat Peas, Mushy Peas and Processed Peas remain Not Kosher.

Other plain canned vegetables and beans in water or brine would still be approved under general guidelines, provided that there are no added ingredients other than salt and preservatives. See isitkosher.uk/#vegetables%20cans%2C%20jars%20%26%20cartons.

Whole Earth coffee substitutes have rebranded to Clipper No Caf and Clipper Wake Up and remain approved Parev.

Kellogg's Oaties Crunch cereal is now called Kellogg's Coco Pops Oat Bites. It is still certified by NWK and bears the NWK Dairy logo. It remains Dairy Equipment (Chalav Akum).

Previously only certified when bearing the MK logo, Heinz Salad Cream Original is now certified Parev in 425g/400ml and 605g/570ml plastic bottles and 285g glass bottles, with or without the MK logo. 930g/875ml is not approved.
